COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

A recent survey conducted in the South Paris - Norway area as to the cost of maintaining an ambulance there indicates a cost of $55,000 per year for one vehicle. It could be assumed that figure would be approximately what it would cost Bethel to have an ambulance stationed here.

There is no clear cut solution already developed to solve our problem locally. Every municipality has its own problems and some are fortunate enough to have full time police or firemen who can assimilate the added burden of emergency service. Some communities are having success with volunteers to man their vehicles, others have not done as well. It certainly takes a united effort on the part of the townspeople to have an effective service comprised of volunteers.

A decision will have to be made here to see if the Town wants to finance a full-time ambulance service, maintain an emergency service through volunteers or rely on an out-of-town contractor.

HIGHWAY COMMISSION TO OPEN BIDS FOR NORWAY-PARIS RESURFACING AUG. 27

Bids will be opened by the State Highway Commission Aug. 27 for three resurfacing projects to be awarded under one contract for work in Norway and Paris. On Sept. 3 the Commission will open bids on an Interstate landscaping project.

The resurfacing project will strengthen and protect the existing pavement on three separate sections of roadway in Norway and Paris. The first section will be on Route 26 beginning at the Oxford town line in Norway and running northerly a distance of 2.6 miles to a recently completed project in Paris at Park Street. The second section is on Main Street in Norway extending from the junction with Route 26 westerly to recent work. The third section to be resurfaced, also in Norway, begins at the Paris town line and runs along Route 118 for 0.3 of a mile.

The Interstate landscaping project calls for planting trees and shrubs along a 30-mile section of Interstate 95 beginning at the Route 159 interchange in Island Falls and extending northerly and easterly to the Canadian border at Houlton, passing through portions of Dyer Brook, Oakfield, Smyrna, Ludlow and New Limerick.

Planting will be done in interchange areas to fill in open spaces and delineate roadways and ramps. A small percentage of the trees and shrubs will also be set out on slopes and along the edge of wooded areas where the natural growth is thin or unattractive.

PLASTIC LICENSES FOR MAINE DRIVERS TO BE STOPPED IN JANUARY

The Maine Motor Vehicle Division will abandon plastic licenses and change to a hard-finish paper starting in January, according to Secretary of State Joseph T. Edgar.

The result will be a saving of $40,000 the first year and an estimated $23,400 a year after that, Mr. Edgar said, and the licenses themselves will have a print quality which will remain readable much longer than the present ones. The licenses will be on paper of about the same weight and finish as punch cards used in data processing.

Another feature will be faster service, he said, with renewal licenses processed and mailed back to the applicant within 24 hours after receipt of the application. Temporary licenses will be necessary only in case of a changed name or address, or for new licensees.

This change comes at the same time as another one, ordered by the legislature, to stagger the expiration dates of driver licenses. Present licenses all expire in even-numbered years on the birthday of each operator. This makes for a heavy workload of renewals in even-numbered years and an unnecessarily light one in odd years.

Starting in January, renewals will be for one year, at a $2.50 fee for those born in odd-numbered years and for two years at $5 for those born in even-numbered years.

After 1970, the usual two-year license terms will apply to all license renewals.

The auction sale at the estate of Mrs. Emma L. Chapman, Church Street, last Saturday, Aug. 16, was well attended. The complete contents of the fine early home were listed.

GREENWOOD CITY — MILTON CONCORD POND ROAD — WEST BETHEL

— Mrs. Collsta Morgan, Corres. — Maude Brown, Corres. — Mrs. Lena Gilbert, Corres. —

It is mid August and where has the summer gone! We know its nearly over because the tall conspicuous Joe-Pie-Weeds have begun to tinge with "Crushed raspberry" the low lands through which we pass.

Our grasslands are carpeted and roads are fringed, a blaze of color, with millions of purple, blue, pink, violet, or white asters, so regal, one of the glories of our country.

There are tangles of tall weeds, goldenrod, the stars and plumes of the New England fall and the fragrant milkweed.

All these and many more I noticed as I, with friends hiked to the section where our town began, Patch Mountain, and in to Furlong Pond, now easier to reach because of a road recently made.

This is a steeper, stonier hill country, 1250 feet above sea level, where stood houses and barns for a generation or two then were deserted, left to a fate of oblivion except for cellar holes and stone walls running here and there. These are masterpieces, conspicuous and eloquent, dry built, no rigidness with mortar. They are kept in place by skillful arrangement. True country walls were made by stones as found and carted from the fields. They were selected carefully, then ox-drawn and eased into place with many a day's hard work and many a back ache at sun down. But these functional fences have stood full of sheltering crannies for squirrels and chipmunks for centuries.

Travelers today viewing these walls seldom think or know that in colonial days one of man's important civic duties was the upkeep of these fences. Most of New England was laced with this network of stone. When we note them in the woods today they have no discernible meaning but they did mark what were once open fields or possibly a lane to a home now forgotten. They show the course of a local road before it was changed to meet the demands of traffic moving faster than the horse or ox. Sometimes, even now the stone wall is the charm of a picnic place separating a private field from a public road.

As usual the forests seemed like enchanted fairylands of loveliness, and at times the foliage so interlaced that the sky disappeared except for a spot of light directly overhead. The forest seemed to press in on the road, cool and beautiful. Walking among the trees makes one a part of the natural world, feeling its sadness, its joy, its beauty, and its inspiration. Just when you think all the forest has gone to sleep a rustle is heard which tells you, you have a friend. A migrant bird may come speeding through with split second dodging among the limbs and underbrush. It might be a chipmunk or red squirrel as curious about you as you are about him and a reminder that human walkers are intruders not in possession of prior rights.

The woody essence came to us but it is almost impossible to remember from a distance what the scent is like. One has to be there. It can not be taken with us.

Surprises of the dark woods are things that are white, Indian Pipes beneath spruce for instance. They spring from a ball of matted rootlets and are parasitic drawing their nourishment from decaying vegetable matter.

"No Angelus except the wild bird's lay,
Awakes these forest nuns; yet night and day,
Their heads are bent as if in prayerful mood." (Mary Higginson)

While mushrooms grew among the mosses as if this greenness was sprinkled with drops of snow. This moss thick and rich gracing the forest floor as does a wall-to-wall carpet at home.

THE WHY OF WHAT WE TEACH
(Dance teacher in the Community)

Ballet seems to me a good choice for dance students in small communities because it, of all dance forms is the most universal. This is, in a sense, a link for them with the world, a common tie with other young people from all over. I also think it is good for dance students because it is a basic form of dance. As they grow older, travel, or move from their small towns, it will help as a background for most other dance-forms and will hinder in none. But they cannot turn to ballet after it is too late.

The ideals of perfection in performance which ballet represents are of such enormous exactitude that surely only a few can hope to reach even near them. But I can see only good in students' efforts to understand these ideals and to try to perform in their image. Furthermore ballet students, from the beginning acquire good posture and strong bodies, as opposed to the fast-growing awkward teen-agers who sag instead of standing up. Good posture and flexibility also help youngsters overcome moments of shyness and feelings of inferiority.

Young boys, also, profit from ballet training, and the ballet needs more male dancers. Regarding ballet as a feminine art is a prejudice left over from a past era of decline and affectation. Pure and simple ballet training is equally suitable for boys and girls, add present day choreography, even more than in the past, requires masculine strength to compliment feminine softness.

Ballet as an art is related to the other arts of music, painting, sculpture, architecture and design, both in its technique and concept, and in its ideals of strength and beauty. Students in ballet class may come to realize this relationship and then all the arts might have more meaning for them. Ballet is one of man's creations that has survived the process of elimination for many generations. It is a living part of our history and as such is a point for study.

You might say, "What has this to do with a small community dance teacher?" We are a part of this wide world of dance. We became a part of it when we decided to take dance seriously and when dance became an influencing factor in our lives. As teachers, we are a child's personal link to the world of dance, and in some cases the only link. As surely as we stand before these students in class we are going to pass on to them, with or without intention, not only whatever techniques we are able to teach them, but also our thinking about dance and its place in the arts, in education, in society, and in like itself.

I have chosen to teach ballet first of all because I love it so dearly that I cannot imagine myself not teaching it or sharing it in some way with someone. Dancing is just one of the many facets of a child's general education and upbringing. Ballet seems to represent to most of my students and parents the finest in dancing. We do not exclude other forms from our thinking, but ballet comes first to mind. Whether this thinking in my community was such before my teaching, or would have been anyway: Whether it is a result of my teaching, or whether we all just happened along together, I shall never really know. But however it came about, I do know that the general harmony of thought which we enjoy is a good thing, especially for the children.

Letters to the Editor

What has happened to the men of years ago have they become boys or degraded to a lower class of their own? I'm referring to the male portion of Telstar R. H. S. student body. Out of approximately 300 potential football players only 32 responded to the call this summer. From there 6 or 8 found it too rough and quit, leaving about 25 men to haul the load for the rest of the school.

What has happened to the pride in one's school. There were times when 80+ men would show up for first practice. As it is now one squad will probably play 48 minutes straight with an occasional relief. Is that fair when there are 275 panty-waists watching from the stands as our men put everything they've got into their game. Wouldn't it be more like it if there were 3 or 4 teams on the sidelines ready to relieve at any time just as all other schools in the state have.

As far as I feel and 24 other men of the team feel anyone who is able and doesn't go out for football doesn't have much pride in himself and it's not too late now to go out, but when Sept. 7 rolls around the day after we beat Mexico our first game and the rest of you candies come running to get your hands on our hard worked for glory we're going to say tough luck fella you should have thought about this 3 weeks ago when practice started.

A trilogy on the nature of Man
by Phyllis Dock

Do we have a generation gap, creating Social problems?

A Letter to Cain
from your mother, Eve

Child, what have we done to hurt you so that you must seek the truth in weeds?
Has not the garden we have sowed grown plants of honesty to meet your needs?
And when in trust you seek our help do we deny we ever went astray;
And in shocked indignation, heap guilt on guilt
'til thus rejected, you once more sadly turn away?
Alas, man teaches child that Man is pure
And child must bring us no shame to tear Man's fine gilt castle down with stain upon the family name.
Is Man not man enough to keep his own gained treasure strong, secure;
Or, must child be father to the man?
Not many thus can long endure!
Wash now your tears, my child of love and know that I'm a child like you.
I've erred as other humans will (and will again).
Count your mistakes as lessons (not as sins).
Bring fresh your strength to each new morrow
Knowing that I love you still.
Does man dare to speak freely when he finally recognizes truth?

Soliliquery

In graceful arcs the gull wheels high to catch the last warm rays of sun
His plaintive cry drifts back to earth stabbing the silence of your room
While mutely silent still we sit, yet yearn to let our Autumn love have birth.
What are man's chains which bind him so he cannot speak these words of truth, found late in life, the long years spent in wand'ring through impulsive youth?
Must we, dreaming, sit by Earth's banked fire hoping to find contentment won;
Or can we, like the gull, aspire to Immortality?
Love to last long after Night is done!
Do we keep so busy with busy work that we fail to recognize or to heed quiet, desperate pleas for help?

Just barely seen by naked eye
the eagle soars high in the sky;
Silent, alone, yet seeing earth with vision rare,
His earthly brother sparrow flits in flocks with other feathered wits;
Noisy, quarreling over a crumb
When a whole loaf he could choose from,
Challenged by the great bird's skill
Man vows to bend him to his will;
And shooting, brings him to the ground,
Too late, ashamed of his crass deed
Man cannot meet the eagle's need for help;
but turns away to hide his guilt,
Lured by a pretty bloom, in vain
the sparrow beats against the pane;
And stunned, falls into dirt.
At once, ten brave men rush to pluck the foolish, helpless sparrow up;
And saving him have saved themselves.
Ah, Blessed power of Grace!
Alone once more the eagle weeps
as silently his life blood seeps into the earth, but not in vain, for tomorrow's bloom will glow the brighter for his doom.
A gentle hint of hope for human race.

SOUTH PARIS OFFICE OF F. H. A. LENDS $1 MILLION DURING PAST FISCAL YEAR

During the fiscal year 1969 ending June 30, 1969, the Farmers Home Administration office at South Paris lent a total of $1,190,100 to 163 families according to Elwyn R. Morrow, FHA County Supervisor. This money, stated Morrow, was loaned to low income farm and rural families to make needed adjustments in their farm businesses or for better housing.

One hundred seventeen loans amounting to $931,870 was loaned to rural families for improved housing for family living. Eighteen of these loans were for new homes, 72 were for purchase and 21 were for repairs only. These loans were well distributed through rural areas and small towns in Oxford County according to County Supervisor Morrow.

Forty-six loans were made to farm families. Thirty-two of these were for farm operating expenses and 14 were for buying farms or making new improvements on the farm.

Other activities shown by the year end report were that the South Paris office has: 494 families doing business, $546,771 was collected during the fiscal year, 1,259 field visits for supervisory assistance were made, 102 families were given analysis assistance, The Farmers Home Administration program was discussed with 500 people and 22 meetings attended. The report shows that delinquency was 0% on farm real estate loans, 4% on housing loans and 11% on operating loans.

In conclusion Mr. Morrow advises that the Farmers Home Administration does business only with people who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere at reasonable rates and terms. The goal of the Farmers Home Administration is to work with people until they can graduate to other sources of credit.

20 SECONDS WITH THE NAZARENE
MY WAY OF LIFE

I have dreamed many a dream that never came true; but I have had enough dreams come true to make me believe in dreams and to keep on dreaming.

I have prayed many a prayer that seemed unanswered; but enough of my prayers have been answered to make me believe in prayer and to keep on praying.

I have trusted many a man who failed me; but found enough true friends to make me forever believe in humanity and keep on trusting.

I have sowed many a seed that fell on stony ground and was devoured by the birds; but I have held in my arms enough golden sheaves to make me believe forever in the harvest and to keep on sowing.

I have fought many a battle and lost it; but I have won enough battles to make me believe in the struggle and to make me keep fighting. — (From "My Way of Life," by J. R. Richards)

U. S. IMMIGRATION BORDER PATROL SEEKS APPLICANTS

Arthur A. Poulin, Jr. District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service for Maine, has announced that the Service has an urgent need for physically fit young men desiring a career in Federal law enforcement work as officers of the Immigration Border Patrol. This is a career opportunity for those who like action and outdoor work.

The Border Patrol is the mobile, uniformed arm of the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the U. S. Department of Justice. Its principal mission is to prevent the smuggling and illegal entry of aliens into the United States. The border patrolmen, called Immigration Patrol Inspectors, work along international boundaries, although their duties are not necessarily confined to these areas. They work in jeeps, cars, on foot, in boats and even in airplanes. Officers investigate violations of the immigration laws and frequently make arrests. They are often required to work irregular hours, under all weather conditions. These duties demand mental alertness as well as exceptional physical vigor and stamina.

The entrance salary of an Immigration Patrol Inspector is $7,639 a year (Grade GS-7). There are promotional opportunities up to executive levels in the Immigration and Naturalization Service. On-the-job training offers splendid opportunities for promotion to positions of greater responsibility.

No previous law enforcement experience is required for these positions. To qualify, applicants must pass a written test of verbal abilities, judgment and aptitude for learning a foreign language. Candidates who pass the written tests are called for oral interviews in the order of their standing on the list. The oral interview is designed to determine if the candidate has the personal qualities needed for the work. Applicants must also pass a rigid physical examination. Candidates who are selected for appointment are assigned to the Border Patrol Academy in Texas for a period of intensive training in such subjects as immigration laws, Spanish, physical training and markmanship. Trainees receive full pay while at the Academy.

Applications are now being accepted for the civil service examinations for Immigration Patrol Inspector scheduled for October 11, 1969, January 24, 1970 and April 11, 1970. Full information is given in Announcement No. WAM.911 which may be obtained from Civil Service Interagency Boards of Examiners, from many post offices, as well as any office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Applications should be submitted on the tear-out application form on the announcement or CSC Form 5000AB and forwarded to the Interagency Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners for Washington, D. C., 1900 E Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20415.

"MEDICARE-MEDICAID" PUBLICATION NOW AVAILABLE

A new HEW publication "Medicaid-Medicare which is which" is now available from the Maine Department of Health and Welfare. The 32-page pamphlet was designed and prepared by the Medical Services Administration to help guide the general public, as well as special groups (civic leaders, service clubs, community action groups, etc.) understand the Medicaid and Medicare programs better.

The publication outlines the differences in the two programs—Medicaid (Federal-State medical assistance for certain groups of needy and low income people) and Medicare (Federal hospital and medical insurance of almost everyone 65 or older). Also covered are: whose medical bills the programs will pay; what services are covered; where the money comes from; and how the programs strengthen America's medical care resources.

Individuals or groups interested in obtaining a copy of this publication are invited to send their request to the Division of Information and Education, Dept. of Health and Welfare, State House, Augusta, Maine, or phone 289-3707.

TIPS ON KEEPING YOUR FAMILY BURGLAR HAPPY

Burglaries occur in the United States, on the average, about once every 30 seconds and Maine homes have not been exempted from the depredations of the foot-pad and the second story man.

Leaving a note on the back door telling when you'll be back or where the key is hidden is all the invitation a burglar needs.

The home has always been the favorite target of this type of criminal. The chances of a burglar visiting your home will be minimized if you'll practice a few common sense precautions, advises the Insurance Information Institute.

When you're in town, keep all doors and windows, including the attic and basement, locked.

Don't leave ladders lying around your property. There's no reason why you should make the housebreaker's job easier. When you go out in the evening, leave a few lights on.

When you go away don't broadcast the fact that your leaving on a vacation or on a week end trip. Suspend in advance deliveries of milk, newspapers and mail.

Before you leave for vacation, ask immediate neighbors and local police to keep an eye on the house. Arrange with someone to mow the lawn or shovel the walks, depending on the season, if you plan to be gone long.

A house that's dark night after night is inviting to the burglar. Perhaps a neighbor would be willing to turn your lights on and off at appropriate times each evening. Or install a timing device which can be set to do the job automatically.

Never take chances on a burglar's having a key to your home. Change the locks whenever you move or lose a key. Don't make forced entry easy. Use heavy screens on Windows and double locks on doors. Don't employ domestic servants without checking references carefully. Don't give your exact address when advertising expensive articles for sale. Thieves read the want ads, too.

Don't keep large amounts of cash and expensive valuables such as jewelry in dresser drawers or other easy-to-spot places. Put them in a safe or a safe deposit box for safe keeping.

The Insurance Information Institute cautions that although insurance against theft is included in all homeowners insurance policies, consider purchasing separate coverage for items of high value such as furs, jewelry, cameras and antiques.

Above all, keep an inventory of personal belongings, as well as a list of serial numbers on such items as color television sets, typewriters and sewing machines. Detailed descriptions of stolen items will be helpful to the police in case a burglar DOES strike.

FEDERAL GRANT ENABLING FURTHER STUDY OF PENOBSCOT POLLUTION CONTROL

The third phase of a program aimed at controlling the pollution content in the Penobscot River from Bangor to Bucksport has been undertaken by University of Maine engineers following receipt of a $54,000 grant from the federal office of Water Resources Research. The most recent two-year grant will enable UM engineers to complete a model of the river as a chemical reactor and devise a plan for controlling the river and maintaining a desired water quality.

HAWKS, OWLS, EAGLES PROTECTED BY LAW

The recent shooting of four nestling ospreys has brought a reminder and a warning from Maine's Fish and Game Commissioner.

Ronald T. Speers reminds the citizens and summer visitors of Maine that shooting or otherwise killing an osprey—or almost any other bird of prey—is both a state and a federal offense.

He warns that Maine game wardens have been put on the alert for violators of these laws.

The Commissioner said that the osprey, or fish hawk, like its cousin, the bald eagle, is declining in numbers due to pesticide residues and disturbances of nesting sites. Any additional mortality through deliberate or careless shooting simply cannot be tolerated.

The Commissioner's remarks were made following a recent shotgun blasting of an osprey nest in the Brunswick area. Three of the four young birds in the nest died as the result of this thoughtless action.

WESTERN MAINE BOARD OF APPROVED N. B. C. BASEBALL UMPIRES RECEIVES CHARTER

The National Baseball Congress has chartered the Western Maine Board of Approved N. B. C. baseball umpires in 1969 National Association of Umpires.

Under terms this group will have jurisdiction over approving all individual umpire memberships into the National Baseball Congress from Androscoggin, Cumberland, Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc, York and Oxford Counties.

Officers for the group are Thomas Rock of Hanover, president; Paul Bodwell of Bethel, vice president; and Drew Webster of Bethel, secretary-treasurer.

Only approved members of the N.B.C. Association of Umpires are eligible to officiate in sanctioned district and state tournaments.

According to president Thomas Rock, the group plans to be active in all the above counties, however for 1970 will concentrate activities in the Oxford County area. The group was formed to provide Little League, Babe Ruth, American Legion, and sandlot baseball teams, and leagues with approved umpires, and a league or team does not necessarily have to be a member of the national association to obtain umpiring services.

Plans for classes and seminars are planned for the coming months in preparation for the 1970 baseball season. This umpire group will be available to any team during the 1970 season.

COURSE FOR POLICE AND RELATED OFFICIALS AT U.-M. STARTING SEPT. 24

INTERESTING PROGRAM AT SAFETY CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT ROCKLAND, SEPT. 18-19

One of the most interesting programs ever to come to a safety conference has been scheduled for this year's Maine State Safety Conference in Rockland on Sept. 18 and 19.

Robert Hawkes, Director/Therapist for the Bangor Regional Speech and Hearing Center will be the principal speaker at the Rehabilitation Safety Session. Hawkes has a degree in Health, Physical Education and Recreation from Springfield College, and a master's degree from the University of Illinois in Speech Pathology. A superintendent of the Opportunity Farm for Boys in New Gloucester for nine years, and a former teacher, Hawkes is a paraplegic as the result of a hay conveyor accident in 1958. Since that date, he has helped organize the Parapalegia and Wheelchair Confined in Maine Association, and has competed in the National Parapalegia Olympic Games every year since 1960. Active in several parapalegic sports organizations, Hawkes has produced and filmed three 16 mm color films on wheelchair activities entitled "Don't Pity Me", "Wheelchair Safari", and "The Wheelchair Athlete". Hawkes is a nationally recognized leader and authority on safety for the handicapped.

The second part of the program promises to be as interesting as the first. Maurice Johnson and Kenneth Morrison will team up to present a special program dealing with the blind. Johnson is a totally blind Rehabilitation Counsellor with the Division of Eye Care and Special Services of the Maine Department of Health and Welfare. Morrison is employed as a Mobility Instructor for the same division.

The Maine State Safety Conference, now in its 42nd year, brings together safety experts and safety management personnel from industries and government organizations throughout New England for the purpose of developing better understanding for safety programming. REALTORS' PRESIDENT SCORES TWO SECTIONS OF FEDERAL TAX REFORM MEASURE

Construction of the resale market for rental housing by making investment in such real estate less attractive would occur if the Senate accepts two sections of the House-passed tax reform measure, according to the president of the Maine Association of Real Estate Boards.

Frank W. Prouty explained that the House version of the bill would limit the maximum rate of depreciation on existing property to straight-line depreciation, and a second provision would recapture as ordinary income all depreciation taken in excess of the straight-line method.

"The prediction that such changes will result in a lessening of investment in rental housing comes from the best possible source—the Department of Housing and Urban Development," Mr. Prouty said.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards, of which the Maine Association of Real Estate Boards is a member, will join with HUD in opposing these changes, he continued.

A third provision would terminate existing forms of accelerated depreciation for new commercial and industrial buildings, there administering a sharp blow at efforts to renew our cities.

Rental housing is in short supply; vacancy rates are below 1 percent in our largest cities; inflation and tight money are cutting off the supply of new rental housing. With such a situation, and with a stated national goal of providing adequate housing for all Americans, we feel it is ironic that the House should have passed a measure which will lessen the amount of private capital invested in rental housing, Mr. Prouty explained.

Our Association recognizes the need for tax reform and has added its support to several proposals to eliminate inequities. We do not feel, however, that 'reform' is the proper word for proposals which will lessen the upgrading of the nation's housing inventory.

"At present most rental housing production in this country depends upon private investment. Under our present system, the major incentive for private investment in rental housing instead of in some other area depends up the stimulus of accelerated depreciation and favorable capital gains treatment on resale," Mr. Prouty stated.

Also a lessening of the flow of private capital to commercial buildings, an inevitable result of cutting back accelerated depreciation methods for these structures, would have serious economic effects, "Housing," Mr. Prouty explained, "is just part of the problem. We must achieve a healthy economic environment in the city so that families of moderate means are able to take advantage of new housing resources.

"Our Association will emphasize these points when it testifies before the Senate Finance Committee, which will begin its hearings on the tax-reform measure shortly. We hope others who are anxious for improvements of life in our urban areas will contact members of the Senate Finance Committee, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C. 20515, and let them know of the serious adverse effects of the three House proposals," Mr. Prouty concluded.
